TRANSFER FROM EURONEXT TO NYSE ALTERNEXT PARIS STOCK EXCHANGE

CAPITAL INCREASE of 3.6 € Million

RocTool (NYSE Alternext – FR0010523167 – ALROC), specialists in the design and development of technologies for molding composites and plastics, announced the transfer from NYSE Euronext to NYSE Alternext with a capital increase of € 3.6 million.

This operation has a dual purpose:

- Provides the means to the group to accelerate its growth, international expansion and reinforce its efforts in Research & Development to adapt its innovative technology to the molding of metal.
- Having already been listed on the NYSE Euronext Paris exchange since 2008, this transfer onto the exchange related market known as NYSE Alternext is also to enhance RocTool's visibility to its latest investors but mainly to its clients, who are predominantly global actors and who are dominate in their respective markets.

Innovation the heart of RocTool Technology.

Due to its innovative technology, RocTool first revolutionized rapid molding processes for composites, then plastic injection. RocTool now wants to continue to offer new developments of its innovative induction technology, particularly for metal molding and aims to make its technology essential even vital to major brands and their manufacturers in order to produce parts that are economically competitive, with impeccable quality.

An aggressive growth strategy, focused on international.

Driven by three major world markets with great potential – Consumer Electronics, Consumer Products and Automotive – RocTool wants to accelerate its international development and invest in its existing subsidiaries and create new ones, notably in Germany and Japan.

The group also intends to accelerate its growth by signing new Licensing Agreements. RocTool is the only company who has succeeded with its Licensing models to big brands and their manufacturers since beginning the marketing of the exclusive, innovative technology. This unique revenue model, generates royalties, also contributes to the sustainability and growth of the Group.

Terms of the Capital increase

The Group undertook an increase of Capital through a private placement of 3,6M€ Euros via a pool of several institutional investors.

Alexandre Guichard, RocTool's CEO, states: "This transfer to NYSE Alternext and the increase of Capital strengthens our credibility and equips RocTool with the necessary means to meet future challenges of molding metal and other new materials. Beyond the pursuit of our international development to follow our clients (90% of the turnover is export), we are already present in Asia and more recently in the USA; we can significantly speed up the signing of Licensing Agreements that are the success of our Business Model. In addition to that, our sales pipeline is very promising in terms of new brands that are contacting RocTool for the production of parts with high added value, while respecting the need for higher production rates."

RocTool will shortly present its results for the year 2013 as well as its turnover growth.

RocTool chose Invest Securities to be their advisors and Listing Sponsor to accompany RocTool in this transfer operation on the NYSE Alternext market.
